

May 14
11:00 - 13:00
Meeting Room 17

Topic: Social Science & Participation

Social Science Support to Adaptation Strategies Programme

Chair: Karl-Heinz Simon

Time	Programme
11:00 – 11:15	Philipp Babczyk, Sebastian Seebauer The two faces of social capital in private flood mitigation: opposing effects on risk perception and response capacity
11:15 – 11:20	Q&A
11:20 – 11:35	Yi-Chang Chiang Risk perception on cross-regional coastal pollution in the context of climate change. A case study of Hakka community of Taiwan
11:35 – 11:40	Q&A
11:40 – 11:55	Esther Hoffmann, Maja Rotter Learning from extreme weather events in German utilities: how sense making influences private adaptation
11:55 – 12:00	Q&A
12:00 – 12:15	Lise Tjørring We forgot half of the population! An anthropological investigation of the significance of gender in energy renovation projects
12:15 – 12:20	Q&A
12:20 – 12:35	Camille Washington-Ottombre, Bryan Pijanowski Regime shifts and land-use adaptations to climate and variability in semi-arid lands around Mt Kenya: a spatial and temporal cross-scale synthesis
12:35 – 12:40	Q&A
12:40 – 12:45	Julia Blocher Charcoal production in Tanzania: exploring the role of migration in adaptation and maladaptation
12:45 – 13:00	Q&A

Posters

Decision making in commercial fishers: An application of the socio-cognitive model of proactive private adaptation to climate change impacts.	Boynton Ms, Townsville
We forgot half of the population! An anthropological investigation of the significance of gender in energy renovation projects.	PhD fellow Tjørring Ms, Lise, Frederiksberg C
Wading Past Assumptions: Gender Dimensions of Climate Change Adaptation in Coastal Communities of the Philippines	Graziano Ms, Kathryn, Seattle, WA
Operationalising resilience thinking: challenges and opportunities	Dr Cradock-Henry Mr, Nick, Lincoln